In the article, there were introduced modern simulating programmes in teaching of technical objects for example occupations with electrical engineering as well as computer science on direction of technical and informating education. The occupation these thanks help the utilization the simulating methods from utilization the computer, the students to ac quaint with principle of not only this ma chine but the utilization him in method of technical project also and the planning.